1. Internship course outline (aims and objectives)

The purpose of the internship is to reinforce the knowledge students have acquired at the university, provide hands-on familiarity with the work in this field, and prepare them for independent professional activity within their specialty.

The objectives of the internship are:

1) consolidate theoretical knowledge regarding the organization, analysis, and management of transport and logistics activities in enterprises across various industries and sectors, and conduct an in-depth study of transport logistics as both a scientific concept and a practical field of activity;

2) gain experience in analyzing and independently solving specific problems related to the student's future profession;

3) collect empirical data required for the completion of the graduation project.

2. Course learning outcomes

As a result of the internship, students should:

– consolidate theoretical knowledge of transport and logistics management by studying and analyzing the operations of the host organization.

– master practical skills in analyzing the key performance indicators of an enterprise’s production, commercial, transport, and logistics activities.

– conduct an analysis of the graduation project's research subject based on the data provided by the host organization.

3. Competencies

Be capable of using economic analysis techniques and enterprise performance evaluation methodologies to obtain objective information regarding the organization’s operations, challenges, and prospects for effective managerial decision-making. Conduct analysis of transport activities, and develop plans and organizational-technological options for the movement of cargo and passengers.

4. Form of midcourse evaluation

Summative performance assessment in internship is differentiated credit.
